<Research Activities>

My research activities have been related to rocket and satellite experiments for study of space plasmas in the ionosphere and magnetosphere. I have been participated in developments of the space-borne instruments for hot plasma and low-energy particle measurements. Based on the obtained data by the rocket and satellite experiments I have studied elementary processes for transport and acceleration of charged particles in the space plasmas and the global electrodynamics of the magnetospheric plasmas. Following is a list of the rocket and satellite experiment in which I participate(d).
